A Young Japanese Man Visits Other Planets [Part 5] by Hachiro Kubota

We have printed Shoichi Harukawa's (pseudonym) experiences of contact for serial publication. This is the final part, which will give you something profound to support George Adamski's claims. (Editor, Uc)

Comes to Earth through Reincarnation

Kubota: I understand that some space people occasionally come to Earth by means of reincarnation for the purpose of helping us, as Jesus did so. In such cases, I've heard that they don't wait until they die of old age to come here. Then, do they kill themselves at the time when they decide to come here?

Harukawa: Well, it is close to the idea of "attaining Buddhahood while still in the flesh" said in Buddhism, which is just one of the ceremonies in recent Buddhism.

First of all, a spaceman, who is coming to Earth through reincarnation to carry out his mission, selects a certain family on Earth in which he shall be born. Then he concentrates all his consciousness on the family and studies their vibrations, lineage, and many other things about them in detail. And if he finds that the family is the best one for him to grow or to live in, he begins to imagine himself with an absolute conviction that he will be born in the family, exerting all his energy and goes finally, without any damage to his body, his consciousness or his soul leaves the body and moves very rapidly into a new born baby in the family he has already selected.

The similar technique has been used in Tibet. The idea of "attaining Buddhahood while still in the flesh" seems to be conveyed to Japan in ancient days originally from Tibet through China. I heard that there are mummies covered with gold in Tibet, and this gold is something. Gold has a very high level of sterilizing power and its nature is resonant with certain specific waves or vibrations. Because of this specificity, gold is now used as a part of some ICs in certain electronic equipments. And one of outstanding natures of gold is to shut out negative thought waves coming from outside, which enables the person covered with gold to concentrate himself much more easily on radiating his intending thoughts.

Space people seem to make use of this nature of gold in their special reincarnations. Such a usage of gold had been introduced to Earth in ancient times, probably by space people. But nowadays, most of us use it only for ornaments.

Plots Against the Truth behind UFOs

[Here, we talked about information on "monster spacemen" and "dwarf spaceman", then kidnapping cases which used to appear on the "Flying Saucer Review", a famous UFO magazine in Great Britain.]

K: There are informations telling us that some people were kidnapped by spacemen in South America and the USA, and that some of them even made love with the spacemen. What do you think of those accusations?

H: Well, many of those informations were intentionally released to mislead the public. There must have been a certain force behind them. One of the recent methods to release false informations is to hypnotize a person and put false informations or experiences into his mind. It is very easy for them to let the hypnotized person to believe that he has gone aboard a flying saucer and have had weird experiences. And such a person would speak out about all that was put in his mind to the public. To deceive a naive person in this way and consequently mislead the public is a very easy and usual practice for the black power.

And the information regarding the "cattle mutilation" is also a very deliberate plot against the truth behind UFOs. This might have been released originally to camouflage some earthly medical experiment or the like.

Psychic Ideas Should Be Differentiated

H: Recently I have heard much about Mr. K's claims. But I think his claims are also confusing people a lot. I know one of Mr. K's close friends and he told me the other day that K had recently come to be as if possessed by something very unsubstantial. As a matter of fact, K's claims are very close to what we call "psychic ideas". We should differentiate psychic ideas from substantial UFO evidences.

People with psychic ideas are apt to misunderstand the effects caused by mental techniques of space people as just a psychic phenomena. Their Ideas or beliefs on those effects are based upon their "time-honored custom". But man's mental ability has tremendous natures, such as thought waves which move faster than light. Nevertheless, most of the psychic people's explanations about those effects are based on the spiritualism in Europe and can't get over that barrier. That means their analysis of the effects is by no means scientific. They just remain inside of their false beliefs.

For instance, telepathic people see various visions when they perceive certain vibrations. But some of them who are possessed by psychic ideas take those visions as effects caused by some spirits flying or hovering in space. Telepathic people of this kind are liable to be attracted by only the surface of the phenomena which scares them, and end up creating serious mental problems.

On the other hand, there is another type of telepathic people who try to investigate the cause of those visions scientifically, considering that there must be an organ or something in a human body which perceives vibrations of certain energy. George Adamski also claimed this the "vibration theory". The acceptance of this theory is the entrance to the truth. And by the acceptance of it, you will be able to control yourself when you see various visions telepathically.

These are the two types of telepathic people. Whether they would try to analyze these effects based on the "vibration theory" determines the type. I have met many telepathic people including some UFO contactees through the universal law of "like attracts like". And I found there were very few among them who accepted this "vibration theory". But there was a man who strongly believed in the existence of the law of vibration behind these phenomenas. He has a great talent of "spirit photography". He says that any psychic idea is just an illusion, and that all we have to do is to study these effects scientifically in detail and try to find some physical law which must be existing there. I certainly agree with him.

General information about psychic phenomena is increasing more and more today, and there are many false views put on them, which seems to be very confusing to the public. But I am rather optimistic that in the near future relatively great numbers of people will come to realize the existence of the law of vibration behind these phenomenas. The more information about these phenomenas, the more people will become interested in them and come to investigate seriously why these things occur. Then the "vibration theory" which George Adamski had claimed may have a chance to be spotlighted.

After all, if we believe only in psychic ideas, we will not obtain the truth. We need to look at the cause of the effect. George Adamski must have learned a lot about this subject from the Brothers. His misfortune was that it was a little too early for his knowledge to be widely accepted in this world.

Computer is not Almighty

[Here, we talked about an American group which has been trying to examine the genuineness of UFO photographs by using computers. Mr. Harukawa, quoting many datas, explained that it was impossible to find the answer by any computer analysis.

I myself (Kubota) used to ask an outstanding computer engineer about computer analysis. Since I had received information that a group in the US concluded, as a result of their computer analysis, that the flying saucers in George Adamski's photographs are dummies hanging on strings, I asked him if such an analysis was possible by a computer. Whereby he replied with a great surprise: "What? There is no way of analyzing such things by any computers. I believe that the only method to find out whether it is hanging on a string is to make a great enlargement of the negative and check it. It has nothing to do with computers to find out a probable string in a small picture. Besides, you can obtain results you want by computers since you can input any information into them. I'm sure it is very easy to let computers computers to show artificial string-like shades in their analyzed pictures."]

Nature of the Solar Energy

K: George Adamski says the sun is not as hot a celestial body as it has been thought. What is your explanation about this?

H: I think at least the center of the sun doesn't have extremely high temperature, generally speaking. There exists "monopole magnetism" in the Universe and the very key point to know the real condition of the Sun is to understand this magnetism. Without understanding this magnetism, heat generation effects in space will not be explained properly. The only thing I can say is that the magnetism is the key.[It seemed to me that he knew much on this matter but couldn't release everything at present for some reason.]

K: There are two theories about the sun's radiation, "particle theory" and "wave theory". What is your standpoint on this discussion?

H: I think that the sun's radiation has both of those elements like a light quantum. There are waves basically, then particles are moved on the waves. However, it is very difficult to know what kind of waves and particles they are, or to which direction they move. And time is also a very important element to discuss this subject. If time energy can be resolved physically, you will know magnetism has a great influence on time. Then another question will arise: "What is it influencing on that magnetism? On Earth we have not yet reached the idea of energy existing beyond magnetism. There are vibrations or waves before magnetism as George Adamski mentioned. Vibration is the essence of all.

I used to have a talk with a physicist.

At that time he said: "Think of the mystery of an atom. There are protons and electrons, then neutrons and neutrinos. And the neutrino seems to be the key to solve this mystery. Furthermore, there must be something which has influence on this neutrino. Since the neutrino has a certain energy to move itself, it is very much logical to believe that there is some faint but substantial power behind the neutrino. At present, we just don't know what kind of power it is."

I think this unsolved power has in some way or the other to do with mind or the origin of life, and earthly science has not yet reached the level to solve this. On the other hand, space people have already solved this mystery. They probably have succeeded in solving this mystery by unifying mental action and material action, and they are putting that knowledge to practical use. Our science needs to take the same attitude in approaching this mystery.

Cathode Ray Tube Theory is a kind of Parable

K: According to George Adamski, there are twelve planets in our solar system instead of nine, and on every planet a great civilization exists. And he explains that every planet has a habitable environment with enough heat and light by quoting a cathode ray tube theory. Do you think he is right?

H: Yes, I think so. However, I think that CRT theory is a kind of parable and the actual effects of the sun's radiation are a little more esoteric. Some people find a few contradictions in his explanation and blame his lack of knowledge. But it is a parable by which Adamski tried to make earthmen understand why the sun's radiation reaches abundantly to even the farthest planet in this solar system. It was the closest idea to the truth of which he could think to explain the reason to people on Earth. To make a complete explanation as possible, we have to understand the natures of monopole magnetism and light. Space people control light as they wish, while we can't. This is one of the greatest walls preventing us to go further. I learned much about light from the space people but don't think that knowledge will be accepted properly here on Earth at present. There is a problem that earthly scientists are not open enough to accept new theories. The usual attitude of scientists on Earth is to stick only to materialistic science and try to gain their own knowledge inside of it, while space people's science unifies mental and material elements.

There is an outstanding telepathist who is one of my very close friends. This person was injured in the head in a car accident, when suddenly she became to perceive various visions telepathically. She has a kind of psychometric ability and is good at drawing what she perceives. So I asked her to draw structures of some atoms, molecules and monopole magnetism according to her telepathic perception. And now, some scientists are very much interested in those drawings, so exciting results may be coming out from their research.

Such an approach shall be needed in scientific study on Earth. Telepathists and scientists should get together and make efforts together to improve science. For instance, flying saucers are controlled to some extent by space people's thought energy. But scientists on Earth have never thought about such a mechanism. On other highly improved planets, at the very early stage of developing flying saucers, there must have been a kind of a pioneer who claimed the influence of Man's thoughts on substances, upon which the other scientists accepted that idea and finally completed flying saucers. I think the study on Man's thought energy was done first over there. But on Earth, telepathists and scientists are against each other most of the times, which is the greatest barrier for the improvement of our science now.

Monopole Magnetism is the Key

K: OK, so the monopole magnetism is the key to the reason why even the farthest planet can get as much heat and light as Earth does. Is that what you said?

H: Yes. The space people told me about the principle in detail but I don't have enough knowledge to explain it accurately.

As I told you before, their flying saucers have a certain mechanism to control the directivity of light. For instance, when there are ten people in line and looking up at the same point in the sky, and if a flying saucer tries to cause two people at both ends of the line to see its figure, the flying saucer has to change the moving direction of light. In that case, very strong magnetism or a kind of time energy is needed there. This time energy is very much to do with monopole magnetism. Monopole magnetism has only one magnetic pole instead of two and does not attract or repel any other usual magnetic poles, because of its quick spinning speed in a certain direction. To solve this principle, we need a lot of people getting together and their great dedication to the study.

Also we need to give up our offensive nature. We have a lot of nuclear weapons on Earth now. And since everyone knows that they are not sacred at all, it may not be impossible that we get rid of them from the surface of our planet some day. But even if we do away with all the nuclear weapons, as long as we keep our offensive instinct, we will develop a new type of destructive weapons. It is very important for us to do away with such an offensive instinct in every respect. And unless this kind of nature is changed, we will not be able to solve the principle of monopole magnetism. By the way, once I was with a space brother, who put out his hand over a small stone on the road without touching. Then suddenly the stone jumped up and was caught in his hand, and he handed it to me. Very interestingly, the lower half of it was warm and the other half was cold, which was not a telepathic feeling but a normal sense. I guess the Brother performed it to show me a certain principle.

K: What is that certain principle?

H: I will never know, unfortunately (laughing). One of UFO researchers in Japan used to dedicate himself to solving why coils of flying saucers emit light even while it is cold. This luminous effect of the coil may have something to do with the effect of that stone. And of course, it must have much to do with magnetism. Inside a flying saucer, I have seen a loop of coil rotating by a certain technology also connected with monopole magnetism. I don't know about the mechanism in detail, though.

K: Is it clear that flying saucers have their own gravitational fields?

H: Yes, certainly. And I think the gravitational field appears to follow some magnetic actions, fundamentally.

Now, there are so many things we don't know yet in the universe. Why does the spherical Earth exist in the universe with its gravitational field? From where does it get energy to keep rotating itself? And many other unknown mysteries of the universe still exist. Considering this, I have to believe the existence of a tremendously great law and wisdom of the Creator.

K: I agree.

H: And I think the universe is an eternal being. Therefore, I think the soul of a human being is also eternal because he was created by the Creator who also created the universe. Although Man will have many bodies in many places, the very energy of himself will be conveyed one after another to new bodies and will last forever.

And if the universe is eternal, and the earthman can change the direction of his life by reforming his consciousness, it is possible even for an earthman to create an eternal being artificially, for the model exists. This might be a very abstract idea to most people. But after all, reforming of consciousness is very important for us.

Well, as I told you before, the structure of the power plant at the bottom of a scout ship which I have gone aboard was a mass of many hexagonal sections, which looked just like a beehive. That was a free energy motor harnessing free energy from space. And when I was in the ship, each space in the hexagonal sections was emitting a kind of light periodically as if it were breathing. I think this light has something to do with the "St. Elmo's light" which is a luminous phenomenon caused by static electricity in the air.

Recently, there was an incident called "Philadelphia Case". It happened during an experiment for a certain purpose in which a warship was charged with extremely strong magnetism. During the experiment, the magnetized ship suddenly disappeared and after a little while it reappeared again. I heard that after the reappearance of the ship, the crew became incoherent and said they had seen some strange creatures. Something very mysterious for them must have occurred. And as far as I know, this experiment was related to one of Einstein's theories.

Well, as for Einstein, I heard that he had been in contact with space people. This is the information from the Brothers themselves. Einstein was in a deep slump and came up against a wall while he was studying the Special Theory of Relativity. If the wall did not vanish, he could not have established the theory. And if he did not establish the theory in those days, it would have taken forty more years for the theory to be established by some other person. Knowing this, space people gave him a simple hint to reach the theory. I don't know for sure if they gave the hint to Einstein firsthand or through his dream.

Anyway, just after he had gotten the advice, he established the theory. However, it raised a discussion among space people because they thought they had done a little too much for the earthman. Since then, they have not given any advice to scientists on Earth. According to them, earthmen have enough ability to do anything but they just don't use it.

Application of Thoughts to UFOs

K: According to George Adamski, flying saucers can fly at a very high speed close to the velocity of light with a minimum propulsive force in the state of weightlessness created by their own artificial gravity fields. Then, what kind of propulsion do you think they apply to their ships?

H: Well, there are many hypotheses about it and I think some of them are pointing out very interesting sides to the truth, such as the one refer to as the "ion craft". And as for the floatation of the ships, a very interesting experiment has been done. Two disks are set face to face and inbetween is a ball bearing. Then, when the disks are rotated in opposite directions to each other at a very high speed, the set of disks moves up slowly and floats in the air. There are other interesting claims about the floatation method and each of them is pointing out certain sides of the truth.

[Here, I (Kubota) told him about Mr. Endo's study of the mechanism of flying saucers. Mr. Endo, one of my co-workers in GAP-Japan, decoded the Venusian letters for himself and already succeeded in developing a small motor which causes a disk to float in the air. But he has not found the propulsive force, yet. Following my explanation about this, Mr. Harukawa talks.]

H: Oh, that's wonderful. So, what he needs to do from now is to study the starter. Actually, it is the thought energy that is needed to make it start moving fundamentally. If he studies this with someone who has a very strong psychokinetic ability he may be able to reach the principle sooner. For instance, while the disk is floating in the air, if such a person with supernatural power radiates a strong thought to "move in a certain direction", the disk will be influenced by the thought and will begin to move in the conditioned direction.

K: I see. Space people are applying their thought energy to their ships that way.

H: Yes, they use their thought energy when they make flying saucers start moving. Before they actually make it start moving, in front of a screen inside of their ship they repeat a few practices of their thought control. The screen reflects the state of their mind. A very high technique of using thought is required there, so even for them, while looking at the screen, checking and regulating the state of their minds beforehand are needed.

K: Then, is there any engine system in their ship?

H: Surely, it has an engine system. I mean that man's thought energy is needed for the ship to start moving, then after it begins to move, the engine system becomes the main function.

[After talking with some psychic phenomena researchers, we discussed about "guardian spirits" and "ghosts", which of course we both don't believe in. Now, Mr. Harukawa explains why they look as if they exist.]

H: What they call a guardian spirit is a very vibratory manifestation of a part of man's consciousness. It also can be said to be a manifestation of a part of his personality. But by misunderstanding, some people think it is an attached spirit instead of a visualized vibration. If they are reeducated properly along the line of the Vibration Theory of George Adamski, they will come to know the truth.

K: After all, guardian spirits are just illusions and don't exist at all. Am I right?

H: Certainly. Once I happened to attend a meeting of a new religious party. There, I found that they were honoring a God of dragon. It was clear to me that they were also mistakenly interpreting a telepathic vision as so. For one of my friends, who is a very telepathic person, frequently sees a vision like the God of dragon, and he found it to be a vibration coming out of a part of his consciousness connected with a thin nerve cell. I think the God of dragon that the new religious party honors is just like this kind of telepathically perceived vibration.

K: Then, how about ghosts?

H: Ghosts are also telepathically perceived vibrations. One who claims to have seen a ghost has actually perceived a certain vibration and visualized it for himself. In other words, at that time he was in a state of midium like a TV set, and he just didn't realize it.

A friend of mine, a computer engineer, used to see a ghost while he stayed at an old Japanese styled hotel. In his room, during the session with the ghost he was calm enough to analyze the phenomenon. According to him, the ghost appeared in front of a sliding door on which some pictures were drawn, and just before it appeared, the colors of the sliding door had turned into different shades like a negative film. Then, on the negative screen, a white ghost appeared. He didn't perceive it as psychic but took it as a kind of a very physical phenomenon. I agreed with him.

K: Ghosts are often taken in photographs. What do you think of it?

H: Certain vibrations are caught in them because photo-films are very sensitive to wave energy. I have seen many ghost pictures and I also have taken that kind of pictures myself, some of which were partly covered with thin white shades. A photo-film has the nature to sense any energy. And this is also the principle of what is called the "spirit photography". A person who has an ability of spirit photography perceives a certain wave first, then his thought amplifies the wave and converts it to stronger energy which can be sensed by a film.

Man's thought has a function of changing the nature of things. Once I performed an experiment on spirit photography with some of my friends. I was able to create colour pictures using black and white films and, black and white pictures using color films. It can be said that spirit photography is one of the phenomenon which shows that Man has an ability to generate great energy.

By the way, a telepathic person who has a willing attitude to research the substantial cause of supernatural phenomena will be able to survive. But those who are interested in only the surface of such phenomena will be easily ruined mentally, and the further they go, the more they become confused.

George Adamski had known this true theory. I think he had experienced a lot of supernatural phenomenon and found the truth behind them. He could therefore leave those strongly convinced accounts.

Young People with Supernatural Power Will Come Out More

H: Most of the people working with me now and I have been involved in the field of supernatural power during the period between 1974~77. There were many other people who demonstrated their supernatural powers during that period of time. And come 1988, one year from now, a large number of young people with supernatural powers will come out at a breath. They are ready to come out now. And many of them will be Japanese.

K: Do you mean that they have not realized their true ability yet, but will come to realize it very soon?

H: Yes, certainly.

K: I see. By the way, there is a rumour that the Savior will appear soon in Japan. What do you think of it?

H: There is a certain group in action behind the idea of the Savior. This group is planning to produce the Savior in South-Eastern Asia. They are also behind some telepathic people and is handling them to make prophecies associated with Nostradamus. There is a Nostradamus researcher in France who also prophesied that the Savior would appear in Japan. However, I don't know him enough to judge his ability to make genuine prophecies. And there is another movement trying to have the Savior in Japan.

By the way, you know of the murder case in Yokohama (one of the largest cities in Japan) involving mad man who had stabbed a 6 year old girl to death. Immediately upon seeing her picture in the paper, I sensed that the girl was a person with very high quality of supernatural power. The murderer was deeply haunted by psychic ideas and she attracted him in some grotesque way. I'm very sorry for her, since she had the capacity to grow up to be a very great person on Earth.

Anyway, it will be very important for us to have as many young people with supernatural powers. According to the space people, my mission in this life is to take mental care of those young people who have realized their ability of their supernatural power, and to help them to be able to walk on their own feet. So now, I am educating these young people with supernatural powers while trying to set a social situation for them to be accepted more easily. Fortunately, young people these days are liable to accept the idea of supernatural power or mental power. They take such a power as a sort of fashion now. And if the fashion maintains for a certain period of time, it will come to be a culture. Trying to establish that culture is one of my very important jobs now.

Today, the existence of UFOs and the true idea of supernatural power are getting accepted more and more socially. And I really admire you, Mr. Kubota, for your long years of efforts to carry out your mission which has contributed greatly to the establishment of such a social situation where I can talk freely on such a subject. I also will have to keep on doing my best to carry out my mission.

About the UFOs Sighted by a JAL Captain

K: A captain of Japan Air Lines had sighted UFOs while flying over Alaska in November of 1986. Where do you think they came from?

H: Well, since I don't have enough information about that, I can't give you an accurate answer. I think there are two possibilities: they might have come from another planet, or from Earth. There was a man named N. Tesla who invented the Tesla Coil as you may know. One of his theories says that an artificial mass of magnetism in the air will be able to absorb and disintegrate objects such as missiles. And just after his death, many of his documents vanished. It has been said that some unknown country had taken them. Later, hovering in the air over that country, balls of light have been frequently witnessed. I wish I could see a photograph or a drawing of them, so that I may be able to perceive vibrations and then I could give you an accurate answer.

[Then, I brought out a picture of JAL captain Terauchi holding his drawing of one of the UFOs he had sighted during the flight. (This picture was originally put in a famous weekly magazine, "Emma", in Japan and introduced in the third edition of this bulletin.)]

H: Oh, great. I have not seen this picture. OK, this is the captain, and this is the flying saucer he has seen; very good. All right, now I can perceive the vibration. Yes, this object has come from some other planet in another solar system. I admire this captain for his bravery to have released this experience, since anyone associated with air business must be forced to shut his mouth on such a matter.

I think there will be many UFO sighting this year. We have had special masses of UFO sightings every ten years. There was a boom of UFO sightings in 1977, and again we will hear many sighting reports this year (1987). Such a tendency of UFOs' coming in great numbers at regular intervals indicates that the space people come to Earth in great numbers to remind us of the universal truth.

Is the Universe Finite or Infinite?

K: Is the universe finite or infinite? What do the space people say about that?

H: They say that there is a certain boundary of the universe for earthmen, which means a boundary that the earthmen can feel at their level. And beyond the boundary, there exists wider space which earthmen can't feel. There are certain units of space beyond the boundary and each unit has life forms. The space people also have their own boundary of the universe that they can feel at their level, although it is much wider than ours. As a matter of fact, they also don't know what lies beyond their boundary accurately. But as a result of their deep study about the universe, they theorize that it extends much farther away, fundamentally.

K: So, is it infinite?

H: Well, it is very hard to answer this question.

K: Yes, I understand that. If the universe extends infinitely or endlessly, the idea of the three-dimensional space makes no sense. Then, a question arises: "What is space?" Did they ever say clearly whether the universe is finite or infinite?

H: I used to ask them exactly the same question. But they would reply: "You are living now to learn what you can learn inside the space which you can feel. So, it is not a smart way for you to think too much about the outside of your cosmic boundary."

They once have shown me a very symbolic reflection of the boundary of the universe on a screen inside of their mothership. On the screen I saw a kind of wall seemingly made out of luminous cotton, which looked very flexible. And small luminous balls were repeatedly bumping against the wall and rebounding. Then once in a while some of the balls penetrated the wall and went outside. While I was watching the scenes on the screen, they told me: "That wall symbolizes the boundary of the universe; the ball is the soul. And the scene in which the ball penetrates the wall shows the very moment of the soul's rising to a higher level through circulations of growing process."

K: How about the theory that the universe is continually expanding?

H: That is correct in a way. But basically, it repeats expanding and shrinking one after another, like it is breathing. They have shown me a symbolic scene about this also on the screen.

I have seen many other symbolic reflections on the screen inside the mother ship. As I was thinking about the flying principle of UFOs, a scout ship suddenly appeared on the screen flying down to the bottom of a very narrow valley. Whereby, the scout ship spinned like a dish of a dish-spinning trick during its descent through the narrow valley. It has much to do with magnetism. If a professional scientist witnessed this scene, he might have noticed the principle to a certain extent.

The Universe is the Manifestation of Waves

H: I heard that a recent scientific research had discovered certain waves inside of moving objects. And in addition to those regular waves with various frequencies, there are kind of movable howlings. Then if you can research further enough, you will find a electromagnetic law existing there.

Magnetism has much to do with waves which our consciousness can perceive.

And the universe itself is also within the law of waves. Furthermore, the universe is not like a white canvas with a drawing of waves on it but is the manifestation of waves fundamentally by itself. And Man is also the manifestation of the same kind of waves.

K: So, can I say that I am the universe or the universe is me?

H: Yes, you can say that. So, it is very logical that any man has the ability to perceive the universe telepathically through his consciousness. The answer is within himself. He has the capacity to know what the whole universe is like for himself. There must be some organ or the like to perceive it within himself. And once he finds the answer, his world will expand.

About Time

K: What kind of ideas do you have about time?

H: The space people told me that time is relative. In space, in addition to the usual three dimensions, there is another axis of consciousness. And according to the various changes of this axis of consciousness, the nature of time varies.

Time is a kind of energy. And inside of Man's consciousness, there is something like a tuner to regulate the time energy. Earth has been a manifestation of the same level of waves for a long time; is, the people on Earth have kept almost the same level of consciousness for a duration. As a result, the earthly time has been set within this level of consciousness. On other much more advanced planets, the extent of consciousness expands much further, so the scope with which time can control or the pressure of time energy gets lessened. Then their idea about time becomes much more flexible.

You know, while having a good time, we feel time passes very quickly. On the other hand, while having a bad time, we feel time passes very slowly. These are not just feelings but are very physical actions. Time is energy. I have seen very interesting reflections regarding time on the screen inside their ship. On the screen in front of me was shown a symbolical expression of the process of a plant's whole life in quick motion. There, when the state of my mind was unstable, the plant on the screen got withered very quickly. On the other hand, when the state of my mind was stable, the life of the plant was extended. Furthermore, according to my various kinds of thoughts, various growing and withering processes appeared on the screen. The flowers growing on the plant lasted longer, the fruits grew bigger and the color of them varied, etc.. This was the lesson they gave me to get to the true meaning of time. Man's thought waves have influence on time, even on time associated with the other life forms. And when I reached this conclusion after an hour of trials in front of the screen, they invited me to another new lesson. Time is relative, that I learned from them.

Importance of Realizing the Law of Consciousness

K: Is the New Science in the US going in the right direction?

H: Yes, I think so. The scientists are trying to approach the Grand Unified Theory from various angles, and some of them have very intuitive ideas. As for the study in time, only physicists had been involved before but scientists in other fields such as biologists have joined in recently. And perhaps in the future, psychologists will have to be involved in the study to draw the right conclusion. As long as we are relying upon only our four senses, we will not be able to come to any conclusion. We need to realize the law of consciousness. Through the study of consciousness or spirituality, seals put on all the fields of scientific study will be broken. The Seven Seals mentioned in the Revelation might be such seals.

K: It is said that the rotational axis of Earth changes its position by the influence of our consciousness. Is it right?

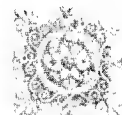

H: Yes, certainly. Our thoughts have physical influence on the shift of the axis. So, it is not right to say that we are in danger because the position of the axis of Earth is unstable. That fact is that Earth is in danger because our thoughts are unstable.

Questions & Answers

by George Adamski

This Q & A was published by George Adamski in 1957 and sent to his co-workers all over the world. This contains much valuable information on UFO issues even now. (Editor, Uc)

Q53. Why are space craft seen in greater numbers over Southwestern United States than in other parts of the world?

A: I believe this is a mistaken idea. It is possible more publicity has been given to reports from this area, but judging from the information I receive through my mail - which comes to me from all over the world- indications are that sightings are more numerous in such countries as England, Australia, New Zealand, South America and Mexico, to name but a few. While many of these people have written detailed descriptions to me, they have preferred not to face possible ridicule or official brush-off by reporting their sightings.

It seems most city dwellers are so busy pursuing their own business or pleasures, they rarely take time to look up. Yet over the years, I have received reports of repeated sightings from practically every major city. As nearly as can be ascertained, the space travelers follow no definite pattern in their appearances, nor do they seem to favor one part of the world above another.

Q54. Are you sure the space people do not represent the anti-Christ?

A: To understand this word, we must realize that the teachings of all the Wise Ones who have lived on Earth carry the same fundamental message; so let us analyze the true meaning of anti-Christ. Anti means; "contrary to, or opposed to"; and do we not oppose the teachings of Christ with our discriminations against religious belief, color of skin, or position in life? Is this following His admonition of "Judge not, lest ye be judged?" Every time we pass judgment upon another, we are anti-Christ.

Jesus constantly taught the brotherhood of man. He brought us a new concept of "love thy enemies as well as thy neighbors." Yet look at our history of wars and bloodshed during the two thousand years since His crucifixion.

Has it not been a monument to our anti-Christ way of life?

Anti-Christ is not one individual, nor group of individuals. It is a principle, or way of life. Let each person search his own heart, then ask himself, "How much of my life really follows the teachings of Christ; and how much, through disobedience to His laws of compassion, is actually anti-Christ?" Only you can answer this honestly.

According to what I have learned from the Brothers, the space people know and live these laws of compassionate understanding for all creation. Knowing that all manifestation is an expression of the One Creator, they do not judge nor condemn. Recognizing that all are children of the Divine Father, they have not participated in wars for millions of years.

I leave it to you. Who is anti-Christ?

Q55. Does one need a special sense to use telepathy?

A: No. Telepathy is not received through any mysterious extrasensory perception. It comes through a thorough understanding of one's true Self, and a disciplining of the sense reactions. Telepathy is universally understood and used by all Nature. Only man, blindly worshipping his ego, has divided himself from his Creator. This is all carefully explained in my forthcoming course on Telepathy.

Thought-transference is not limited to receiving impressions from others, not to contacting the space people. To the recipient of true telepathy, both are minor. But rather, he will seek an understanding of his component parts, his purpose for being, and his relationship to the Cosmic All. When he has accomplished this, there will be no limitation upon his telepathic reception; which then will come from all phases of creation.

But this in no way calls for the use of any mystical sixth or seventh sense. It merely calls for a knowledge of those he already possesses.

Q56. Do the people on other planets have pets as we do?

A: Since this subject is relatively unimportant, I have not discussed it in detail with the visitors. But from their explanations of their attitudes toward all life-forms, I have gathered they enjoy pets as we do. However, I am sure these pets would be treated more as equal, participating members of the household, rather than as "dumb animals." Our discussions have always been on the broader concepts of the interrelationship between man and all form-life; which would include the animal. Their recognition of the oneness of the Life Force flowing impartially through all forms, gives them more of a real kinship with other manifestations than we have yet attained.

Creation is the same throughout the universe. Evolution, or the refinement of matter, is a Cosmic Law. Our own planet furnishes us proof of this. From studying the skeleton remains of life forms that once trod the Earth, we are able to trace the evolution of these forms to the present day. Some adapted to changing nature, others perished. But always bear in mind, Earth is not unique. Divine Nature expresses the same throughout the Cosmos. Therefore, other planets will be blessed with the animal, fowl, reptile and insect kingdoms.

If we truly understood our unity with these kingdoms, we would feel no division from them. Anyone can prove this if he so desires. Remember, there is only one Creator, one Supreme Intelligence; and all life receives equally from this one Source. Insects respond beautifully when talked to with the knowledge that they share this Intelligence with their human brothers. Do you think this absurd? A try can teach the sincere seeker much more about other forms and their intelligence than he ever thought existed. I highly recommend it. But as with humans, harsh words, fear, or impatience, will interfere with satisfactory results.

Q57. Why are so many people willing to acknowledge the reality of the UFO's and their origin from other planets, but refuse to believe your statements regarding meeting the people from these ships?

A: This seems to be an idiosyncrasy of human nature. These people confirm that space ships exist; that they are intelligently controlled; and that reliable reports of landings have been verified. Yet for some reason, they shy away from the idea of space people contacting the dwellers of Earth. I do not understand why.

Let us analyze the situation logically. We are now planning space travel ourselves. The proposed trip to the moon seems a possibility in the very near future, and our scientists are talking of sending ships to Venus and Mars. Does anyone think for one moment that when we do succeed in reaching either our own satellite or our sister planets, we will not land and contact the inhabitants? Why, then, should it be considered outlandish for the people from other planets to land and communicate with Earthlings?

The visitors have made themselves inconspicuous while on Earth, conforming rigidly to our customs; for they are aware many people still find it hard to believe advanced human beings surround us in space. They are cognizant of the ridicule those whom they contact must face, yet it is imperative that certain truth be given to the peoples of the world at this time. As stated in INSIDE THE SPACE SHIPS, I serve merely as a liaison to bring these messages to as many as I can reach.

I assure you the price for sharing this knowledge is indeed high. The skepticism and ridicule I have had to face makes it possible for me to sympathize with others who are reluctant to tell of their experiences with the visitors. It is ironical that this very disbelief has opened wide the doors for impersonations and falsifications, which only leads to more confusion. For these constant denials have kept the true facts from the public. So many, in their eager searching, have been misled regarding the normalcy of the space people.

This same skepticism and ridicule has been instrumental in silencing our leaders concerning the facts they have been given by the interplanetarians.

Q58. What is your opinion of the many saucer groups? Considering the dissention among some, are they of any value?

A: All these groups have done invaluable work by keeping the information of the aerial phenomena constantly before the public. They deserve much credit, for in many instances it has been a thankless, costly, time-consuming venture. They have fought an uphill battle to bring reports of sightings, landings, and contacts to a skeptical public. I know of some who have gone to great lengths to verify reported landings and contacts; and when, in spite of their careful investigation, they have later found a fraud was perpetrated, they have immediately published a retraction of the story.

I believe dissention has entered into groups who meet to discuss this subject, because too much stress has been laid on the phenomena of sightings, and not enough on the advanced pathway of life these visitors have shown us. Their very appearance in our skies in friendship, carries the Cosmic message brotherhood. For were they hostile, with their superior knowledge they could have conquered the world long ago. "Religion" and "spirituality" should not enter into this study; for in reality, we are dealing with nothing more mysterious than the basic, natural, Law of Evolution.

It is my opinion, that were all groups to couple their research into sightings with a sincere study of the information given by the space people, the dissention would vanish and an expanding mode of living would open before them. For remember, the communications coming from the Brothers are not beautiful platitudes...but a liveable, workable, pattern for our daily lives.

Q59. What kind of metal is used in making space ships?

A: According to reports on analysis, including those I have had made myself, the predominant metal seems to be a very high-grade aluminum. It is combined in an alloy with many other minerals known to Earth, and traces are found of two elements unknown to us. This does not necessarily mean these metals are not here; but could mean we have not as yet recognized them. Science is making new discoveries all the time as they experiment with new formulas for metals. So, space ships are not made from any "out of this world" metals.

A truth which seems so difficult for Earth people to grasp is, that all planets are born from the same space. Our astronomers know that eons ago, what is now our solar system was an inconceivably immense "cloud" of activated, swirling space. Gradually, through the Law of Relativity, cores of this cloud concentrated to form the central sun and the twelve planets. Therefore, is it not obvious that all planets will contain the same basic elements? For the "seeds" which eventually manifested into solid form, were spread throughout the original cloud.

While it is true, quantity and quality may differ from planet to planet, just as we find concentrations of elements in certain sections of Earth, fundamentally the composition is the same throughout the Cosmos. Since the "seed" for all life forms must have been in the original activity, the student will find this whole conception contains much food for thought.
